Mr. Birdsell is in a unique position since he is author, printer, and distributor of the informative book He has spent the past year giving instructions covering his "system," and has received a copyright covering publication as of December 23, 1957. Several local residents have added his book to their list of "needed" volumes in the home library, and are absorbing the information so that the game of three-cushion billiards can be improved and more benefit derived from leisure time.

He is already booked for several exhibitions at billiard parlors throughout the midwest to explain the fine points of his system and book.

Soon You Will Save Steps, Save Time When You Save With Elliott

Rollyn Trotter, Walter DeShara, Wayne Foote and Leland Ogle look over plans for the new Savings Department. Now located on the ground floor, the department will move to larger quarters on the main banking floor when the building and remodeling program is completed.

We're literally moving back the walls so that we can serve you better at Elliott! The Safe Deposit department on the main floor will move into the new wing and the main banking floor will be enlarged so that we can give you faster, more comfortable service. The Savings Department will come up from the ground floor and occupy two conveniently placed windows in the main banking lobby. We regret that there will be some temporary inconvenience while remodeling is underway, but we think you will enjoy the new location of our Savings Department. It was planned to save you steps, and save you time, when you

Editorial Comment

The Great Balancing Act

President Eisenhower has committed himself to a remarkable effort. He proposes to try to balance, in fiscal 1960, a federal budget expected to be out of balance by some 12 billion dollars this year.

There probably isn't a taxpayer in the country who doesn't wish him well.

The alternative of another deficit spells either more borrowing, which means added inflationary influence, or more taxes, which cut purchasing power directly.

Whether or not the President has real hope of achieving his announced goal of a balanced 77-billion-dollar budget is a matter sure to be hotly debated in the weeks ahead.

His plan presumes reasonable advances in federal revenues, probably including a rise in the gasoline tax. It also envisions cuts in certain existing programs affecting housing, farm aid, and unemployment compensation.

These last may be easier to propose than to bring about. Federal programs have a way of clinging to life tenaciously.

It is to be noted, too, that Mr. Eisenhower actually intends to ask for more defense money than ever before in peacetime. This means all the burden of attaining a balanced budget is upon the nondefense items.

The only trouble with that, practically speaking, is that the recent history of the budget shows a pretty steady climb in the total nondefense budget outlay. And there have been predictions from highly responsible sources that this trend will continue for years to come.

In the light of that, some will be saying that the President's 1960 budget proposals are unrealistic and have been tossed out now in order to place responsibility for heavier spending on the big Democratic majorities in the new Congress.

Just how realistic his plan is will be told by the totals we ring up next year on the federal cash register.

As for passing around the blame or credit for actual results, that little game will go on at full pace, as it al-

According to experts on vital statistics, whose findings recently were reported by NEA reporter Ray Cromley, married men hang onto life longer than their unmarried brothers.

Not only do they tend to stick around longer, but they aren't as easy prey to things like ulcers, hypertension, heart disease, cancer, tuberculosis, and pneumonia. And they don't jump out of windows as often as the un-marrieds.

Now look at a weather map. We usually see both cool and warm air fronts indicated by long continuous lines stretching across the map. Cool air masses moving in from either the Northwest corner and tend to move eastward and out fronts come up from the southland and move northeastward across the J.S.A. and again out to sea.

Regions of HIGH (generally fair) pressure and LOW (stormy) pressure are clearly indicated. Younger Set At Country Club Dance

The 'early and sub-teen' group of young people attending the holiday dance Monday afternoon, December 29, at Jacksonville Country Club were models in adult decorum as the accompanying pictures bear out.

The young adults enjoyed dancing to recordings and refreshments during the afternoon tea
